Description:

ICIOT 2018: 20th International Conference on Internet of Things New York

This conference, scientifically sponsored by the International Computer and Information Engineering Committee, is a huge meeting of academic scientists, researchers, and research scholars who present scientific papers and share research on anything and everything having to do with the Internet of Things. Expect esoteric information and bleeding-edge breakthroughs tested and presented with scientific rigor.

Reason to attend: You're so beyond what passes as "innovative" in IoT at most conferences. You want hard science, sound engineering, and imaginative research. You already know what's happening in IoT. You want to know what's coming next and maybe even how your own ideas compare.

Date: June 3-4, 2018

Venue: New York, NY [Map]

Cost: Starts at $296, or €250
