Common

Description:

WIRED Health explores and maps the future of health, highlighting the thought-provoking disruptors, scientists and practitioners paving new paths in how we access, provide and improve patient care. Since its launch in 2014, WIRED Health continues to connect innovators with influencers and to inspire business decision-makers, entrepreneurs and medical professionals with its editorially-curated programme and interactive Test Lab.

Join us this March to understand how the health industry is evolving – and how quickly, discover the startups and scaleups changing the landscape and meet like-minded attendees looking for inspiration and collaboration.

Speakers for 2020 include:

- Award-winning science journalist and broadcaster Angela Saini, author of the Physics World Book of the Year, Inferior: How Science Got Women Wrong – the book that demonstrates how science doesn't support age-old beliefs of gender inequality based on biology
- Accomplished surgeon, biomedical scientist, and serial entrepreneur Bob Hariri, who pioneered the use of stem cells to treat a range of life-threatening human diseases – and is now the Founder Chairman and CEO of clinical-stage cell therapeutics company Celularity
- Indra Joshi, the Director of AI for NHSX, the new joint organisation driving forward the digital transformation of health and social care
